Health and Child Welfare Minister denies bird flu death

Mystery surrounds the cause of death of MDC-T [Movement for a Democratic Change - Tsangirai] legislator. News reports said that the senator had died of avian influenza or bird flu, but health expects deny there any cases of the disease in the country. Health and Child Welfare Minister Henry Madzorera said the government had not raised any alerts of an outbreak of the disease as they had not received reports of a possible epidemic. "The Epidemics and Disease Control centre has not informed me about any outbreak, but they are closed and we can only know that after the holidays," he said. Madzorera said he could not comment further as he had not received any news of an outbreak.

A searchable database available for your local system

To meet the needs of research and academic institutions for faster, more efficient, more flexible searching of the ProMED archives, we are offering a database of ProMED-mail postings on a memory stick for access on your local system.

The Primary Archive, which includes all global English-language ProMED-mail posts from the previous calendar year, can be purchased for $500 (includes up to five users at the same institution.)

The Complete Archive, which includes all global ProMED-mail posts from the previous calendar year in English, Portuguese (ProMED-mail-PORT), Spanish (ProMED-mail-ESP), Russian (ProMED-mail-RUS), and French (ProMED-mail-FRA), is available for $1,000 (includes up to five users at the same institution.)

The user base for either Archive can be enlarged at a fee of $50 per additional user.

Created with FileMaker Pro, this searchable database system is comprised of both a database engine ©FileMaker, Inc. and data records © ISID/PMM as a royalty-free, self-contained, standalone software application that runs on either Mac or Windows platforms. The fields included in this application are: HealthMap internal ID, time stamp, title, the full text of the post, and meta data fields including diseases and locations. All of the fields are searchable both individually and in combination with standard logical operators.

Your purchase of the archives will support the maintenance of operations, including our regional networks and activities in underserved areas, and the expansion of ProMED services. This new program presents an excellent opportunity for state-funded departments of health and research and academic institutions that are restricted from making charitable contributions to non-profits to support ProMED while acquiring a valuable information resource for their libraries and labs.

You may order online (credit card or PayPal) or contact Andrew Sideman <archives@promedmail.org> to request an invoice.
